Members of Parliament Released—How the News was Received.

[By Cable to the Sentinel.]
DUBLIN, May 3.—Parnell, Dillon and O'Riley have been released from Kilmainham jail. After the release they drove upon the outskirts of the city to Harcourt street station, where they took the train for Avondale, the residence of Parnell, where they will remain for two days, and will arrive in London Friday.
DUBLIN, May 3.—There was great excitement on the news being received of the resignation of Forster. Crowds gathered in the streets and cheered for Parnell and groaned for Forster. Bands paraded the city, playing national airs. The news of the release of the land leaguers was quickly transmitted through the country, and soon fires were blazing on Wicklow hills. There were spontaneous rejoicings everywhere. At Limerick many people danced with joy, shouting "Forster is gone, God save Ireland." Bands paraded at Waterford, and illuminations were general.
Parnell, Dillon and O'Riley were released at 11 o'clock last night. Further changes at Dublin Castle are expected. Thos. Henry Burke, under secretary, and Colonel Hillier, inspector general of constabulary, will probably resign.

COERCION A FAILURE.

Gladstone Announces Forster's Resignation—Accounting for the Failure of the Coercion Act.

[By Cable to the Sentinel.]
LONDON, May 3.—Gladstone, in the commons yesterday, made an announcement similar to that of Earl Granville in the house of lords. Gladstone stated that a large number of other suspects will be released, and the government, instead of renewing the coercion act, would introduce a measure remedying the administration of justice in Ireland. He said instructions had already been sent to Ireland for the release of three imprisoned members of parliament, and that the lives of the suspects were being carefully considered, with the view to release all except those who were arrested on suspicion of having been personally concerned in outrages. These releases would be on the government's sole responsibility. Gladstone stated that Forster had resigned because he was not willing to share this responsibility, and that Forster would make a personal explanation Thursday. The measures which the government will introduce, remedying administration in Ireland, deals with the protection of life and property.

Speaking with reference to the coercion act, Gladstone made a special reservation. If peace and security should be jeopardized by the action of secret societies, the government would consider it its duty to propose countervailing measures. He declared the government did not think the coercion act had failed, as it had served an important service in the great crisis. He warmly praised the manner in which Forster performed his duties, and expressed regret at his retirement. Gladstone declared that none of the measures announced in the Queen's speech at the opening of the session, except the resolution in regard to rules of parliamentary proceedings, would be allowed to stand in the way of measures which the government would introduce for restoring peace and order in Ireland.

AT WASHINGTON,
WASHINGTON, May 3.—The state department furnishes a letter from Earl Granville to Minister West, concerning the imprisonment of American citizens in Ireland in which he details, at considerable length, the view taken by the English government on the subject and heretofore published, to the effect that American fishermen in Ireland must submit like other fishermen to the laws. He quotes, at some length from Seward's dispatches during the rebellion to show that the position taken by the British government now is the same as held by the United States government in 1866.

A Reception to the Ideals.

Last night the principal members of the Ideal Opera Company were entertained by ex-Mayor and Mrs. Randall and their charming daughter, Miss Mary, at their elegant residence on West Berry street. Numerous people of our best society were invited to meet the accomplished artists. The company did not separate until 2 o'clock this morning. The hours swiftly passing away in the exchange of social courtesies, dancing, etc. Elegant refreshments were served, after which H. O. Barnabee gave his song, "The Cork Leg," a composition which laid the foundation of his fame as an artist. Miss Jennie Withers accompanied on the piano. Mr. Tom Karl was suffering from fatigue, and could not be prevailed upon to sing much to the disappointment of those present. A pleasant feature of the occasion was the presence of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. McDonald (Miss Marie Stone). Miss Stone is an old schoolmate of Miss Lou Strong, of this city, the two ladies having attended an educational institution at Worcester, Mass., some years ago. The two ladies were very much rejoiced to meet again and volubly exchanged reminiscences of their school days. Miss Stone met her husband while studying music at Milan, Italy, and married him.

She is a Bluffton Maiden.

The Bluffton Times youth indulges in the following facetiousness: "The young man of the Fort Wayne SENTINEL publishes the contents of a couple of letters which were picked up on the streets of that city, and belonging to a Miss Lillie Kreps. Mr. Healy would like for the impression to prevail that he 'has not, as he remembers, the pleasure of Miss Lillie's acquaintance,' however, be that as it may, it looks to us like 'chaff.' We will give Frank the credit of the doubt, nevertheless, but will inform him that if he should ever wish to know more of Lillie, to call on some of her Bluffton friends."

IN SERIOUS TROUBLE.

A Charge of Rape and Seducing Preferred Against a Prominent Citizen of Perry Township.

Last night, Constable Geo. Barrett, of Perry township, brought to the county jail, a man named Johnson, son of Uriah Johnson, a wealthy and prominent farmer of Perry township. Constable Barrett, yesterday, arrested Johnson at Winnemac, Putnam county, on a warrant issued by Esquire Griffin, of Perry township, charging bastardy. The complainant is an eighteen year old girl, named Julia A. Kestler, who charges that she is in a state of pregnancy, the result of a much too intimate acquaintance with Johnson.

Julia states that some five or six months ago she was employed as a domestic in the family of Johnson, who then resided in Perry township. He is married and has two or three children. Miss Kestler affirms that Johnson took her by the arm and forcibly dragged her to his apartment, where he committed a rape, though this is not the charge on which the girl's statement and claims that the job is put up on him to get money. Miss Kestler is an unflattering young person, and is said to be slightly cracked in the upper story.

Constable Barrett took his prisoner to Perry this morning, where he will readily secure bail from his father. S. M. Hench has been employed to assist Prosecuting Attorney Dawson, and J. Q. Stratton will defend the prisoner at the preliminary examination which will take place in a few days.

Very Suspicious.

A minister who was, perhaps not too careful in his habits was induced by his friends to take the teetotal pledge. His health appeared to suffer and his doctor ordered him to take one glass of punch daily. "Oh!" said he, "I dare not. Peggy, my old housekeeper, would tell the whole parish."

"When do you shave?" the doctor asked.

"In the morning."

"Then," said the doctor, "shave at night, and when Peggy brings you up your hot water you can take your glass of punch just before going to bed."

The minister afterward appeared to improve in health and spirits. The doctor met Peggy soon after a d said: "I'm glad to hear, Peggy, that your master is better."

"Indeed, sir, he's better, but his brain's affected; there's something wrong w' his mind."

"How?"

"Why, doctor, he used to shave at night before going to bed, but now he shaves in the morning, he shaves before dinner, he shaves after dinner, he shaves at night—he's aye shavin'."

Joseph Durrinlunger, Broadway, Buffalo, was induced by his brother to try Thomas' Electric Oil for a sprained ankle; and with half a dozen applications he was enabled to walk round again all right.

"PATIENCE."
The Production of Gilbert and Sullivan's Aesthetic Opera Last Night by the Ideal Company.
But one of Gilbert and Sullivan's magical works have achieved as much popularity in this country as in England. "Patience" is "Patience" and the "Patience of Penance" all made great hits and only an opera called "The Sorcerer," the work of these gentlemen, failed to become popular. Gilbert's quaint "concoits" turned to Sullivan's charming melodies are unlike anything ever seen in this country, and hence have achieved great and merited popularity.
"Patience," the latest work of the collaborators, was seen in this city for the first time last night and presented by the "Ideal" opera company a collection of fine artists, achieved an instantaneous success. The plot of the work, which is a satirical treatment of the drama for aestheticism, has been detailed. Though the aesthetic movement is of English origin, like everything with the London stamp of approval it has reached this country, and has for a time raged as fiercely in the parlors of America as in the drawing rooms of the British capital. The advent of Oscar Wilde, whom the character of Bunthorne satirizes made the piece a great go, and it has made almost as much money as "Pinafore."
The presentation of the work by the Ideals last evening was in every respect a success, and was witnessed by a large, fashionable and enthusiastic audience who readily perceived the keen satire of Gilbert and were delighted with the melodious setting of the work. We have witnessed the performance of the opera by the Comley-Barton company in Chicago, and it is vastly inferior to this. The Ideals are committed to more nearly reach the author's ideas than any other company which has sung the opera. Other artists have converted the opera into a broad burlesque and have not been able to embody the subtle humor which runs through Gilbert's lines. The music through the delightful and original, though not as catchy as that of "Pinafore" and the "Pirates." Indeed, the only airs which the whistling idiots of the city, who attended the performance last night, will be apt to master is the duet "Prithee, Pretty Maiden," and the duo "When I go out of Doors." The cast was perfect. H. C. Barnabee, one of the best buffo singers on the stage, acted Bunthorne in a most amusing manner and his clear enunciation and good baritone voice made it one of the best characterizations of the evening. Tom Karl, the tenor, sang the role of Grosvenor, the idyllic poet. Mr. Karl's voice has much deteriorated in past years owing perhaps to his well known habits of conviviality. Still it is a pleasant if husky tenor and his work was made effective by some better acting that we ever saw him do. Especially good was his rendition of the song "A Magnet Hung in a Hardward Store," and in his several duets with Miss Stone he was warmly applauded. The parts of Disastable, Murgabroyd and Caberville were taken by those three well known artists, Frothingham, Fessenden and McDonald, and though the parts afford little chance for an artist, they were rendered prominent by the hands they were in. Miss Marie Stone, the Patience, we have frequently seen in "Pinafore," "The Pirates," and, indeed, most of the comic operas. She is a very vivacious actress and her voice is a beautiful and cultivated soprano. Though not in good form in the first act, as the opera progressed Miss Stone made a great hit by her delightful acting and singing. Edy Angela by Miss Janet Edmondson, a pretty girl with a sweet if not powerful voice, was appreciated, and Miss Matilda Phillips' Lady Jane received much applause. Miss Phillips is a sister of the late Phillips, and possesses a rich contralto voice, much resembling that of her sister. Her acting was also clever.
The chorus was large and the best ever seen here, and the band was full and well drilled.
Among the members which particularly met with favor were: "Though My Book I Mean," (Barnabee); "Prithee Pretty Maiden," (Karl and Stone); "Showered is the Raven Hair," (Phillips); "Song of the Magnet," (Karl); duo, "So Go to Him, etc.," (Barnabee and Phillips); quintette, "If I Choose I Choose to Marry," trio, "It's Clear That I'm a Diva," and duo "When I Go Out of Doors."
Coutinman says will not make any considerable sum of money on the engagement, nor did he wish to, all he desired was to be re-embowered. THE SENTINEL has no doubt but that his enterprise is duly appreciated and it is to be hoped.

A Card.
Having understood that numerous persons in the Fifth Ward, one in particular, a temperance man, connected with one of the dailies in the city, remarked that the "Dutchman," Ed. Menck, should close his saloon on election day, or suffer the consequences of the law. I would say that the "Dutchman" being a law abiding citizen, closed and locked his doors at 8 o'clock yesterday morning, in obedience to the proclamation of the mayor, and carrying the only key to the house himself, he is satisfied and knows that the place was not opened again until quarter before seven in the evening—three-quarters of an hour after the law specified that such could be opened for the sale of liquor, etc.

For This Week Only!

H. H. WARNER & Co., Rochester, N. Y.:
GENTLEMEN: Your remedy, the Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, has been used by both my wife and myself. She used it "on general principles," as a system and liver regulator. I used it because of a long standing kidney trouble, which has been the source of much inconvenience, and which failed to yield to the doctor's remedies or any other, until I used your Safe Kidney and Liver Cure. We both unite in pronouncing it the best medicine we ever used, and in recommending it to others as a safe remedy.

Cuticura

THE NEW BLOOD PURIFIER
Resolvent

I will now state that I made a miraculous cure of one of the worst cases of skin disease known. The patient is a man of forty years old; had suffered fifteen years of a severe, scaly and red skin disease. He presented a frightful appearance. Had had the attention of twelve different physicians, who prescribed the best remedies known to the profession, such as ointments, lotions, and various other treatments, but with little relief. I revealed upon him to use the Cuticura Resolvent internally, and the Cuticura Soap externally. He did so, and was completely cured. The skin on his head, face and many other parts of the body, was now as soft and smooth as an infant's. With no scar or trace of the disease left behind. He has now been cured of his skin disease. Reported by F. H. BROWN, Esq., Barnwell, S. C.

PROF. DR. BROWN, in detailing his experience with the Cuticura Resolvent, said that through living, Providence one of his patients was cured of a scaly skin disease, which was slowly destroying his life. By the Cuticura Resolvent internally, and Cuticura Soap externally, the disease was cured. The patient is now as healthy and vigorous as ever. ALLEN M. FRAXLEY, 61 South St., Baltimore.

THE SENTINEL is the only afternoon daily in Fort Wayne with regular telegraphic dispatches.

Italy's Jesse James Passes Away.

London Telegraph. Although Pietro Gasparone, the renowned big game chief, was well advanced in his 90th year when he expired the other day in an asylum for the poor near Naples, it is hardly to be said of him with truth that he died at a "good old age." No more tactful and merciful ruffian ever adopted the bandit's profession than this incorrigible desperado, upon whom more than half a century ago the inhabitants of his native province considered the significant sobriquet of "The Terror of the Abruzzi." Unless his reputation previously belied him, he positively revelled in crime, and was a past master in every branch of atrocity. When a mere stripling of 19 he took to brigandage in consequence of a disappointment in love. At that time he had spent three years as a cowherd in the service of a wealthy farmer, of whose only daughter he became enamored. The immediate result of this presumptuous passion, upon its discovery by the girl's father, was Gasparone's dismissal, to revenge which he promptly "took to the hills" and joined a predatory association, of which he subsequently became the president, and persuaded his new companions to join him in a razzia upon his unkempt master's family and property. In this expedition he displayed qualities which at once stamped him to be a rising man in his profession. Having brutally outraged the object of his affections, he slew her and her father with his own hand, leaving the other members of the family to be dispatched by his associates. Later on, under the Bourbon regime, he flourished exceedingly and succeeded in inspiring the Abruzzi population with such abject fear that no one could be induced to betray him, throughout his long career, although the Neapolitan government at one time offered a reward of 5,000 ducats for his head. As soon, however, as his physical powers began to fail him, he contrived to make terms with the authorities, and surrendered himself voluntarily upon the assurance that a full pardon would be granted to him. During the last ten years of his life, spent in the asylum above referred to, he is said to have written his memoirs, to be published after his death under the title "The Experiences of a Neapolitan Patriot from the year 1811 to the close of the Franco-Prussian War." This work, which can hardly fail to teem with thrilling incidents, is announced for publication in the advertisement columns of an Italian contemporary.

A Homely Woman's Charms.

A girl who thinks it is necessary to be beautiful in order to be attractive, should get bravely over that notion. A young woman's plainness—which, by the way, saves her from a great many annoyances and dangers—need detract nothing from her loveliness if only her disposition is amiable, her mind cultured and her heart kind and pure.

The story is told of a famous lady who once reigned in Paris society, that she was so very homely that her mother said one day, "My poor child, you are too ugly for any one to ever fall in love with you."

From that time Madame de Circourt began to be very kind to the pauper children of the village, the servants of the household, even the birds that hopped about the garden walks. She was always distressed if she happened to be unable to render a service.

This good will towards everybody made her the idol of the city. Though her complexion was sallow, her grey eyes small and sunken, yet she held the devotion of the greatest men of her time. Her unselfish interest in others made her, it is said, perfectly irresistible. Her life furnishes a valuable lesson.

School Headaches.

Scholars are often twitted about the headache that invariably afflicts them in school and which never comes when they remain at home. This complaint, like spring fever is ridiculed by those inclined to believe all children eager to stir study. When we consider, however, the defective ventilation of our common school-houses which are not as well provided with fresh air as are our jails and prisons, it is small cause for wonder that children gape and yawn through recitations and have heavy and aching heads. The sanitary condition of public schools in this particular is abominable. Ventilation must either come from the windows, causing colds in those whose backs are exposed to the draft, or else through dusty floors which fill the current impurities. It is impossible to send a delicate child to the common school and have it pass through the term without sickness. Families who can ill afford the outlay are compelled to place their children in private schools to ensure them the supply of oxygen necessary to good health.

"OLD SHOES"

"How much a man is like old shoes. For instance, both a soul may lose. Both have been tanned, both are made tight. By cobblers. Both get left and right. Both need a mate to be complete. And both are made to go on feet. They both need healing; oft are sold. And both in time turn all to mold. With shoes the last is first; with men The first shall be the last; and when The shoes wear out they're mended new. When men wear out they're men dead, too. They both are tread upon, and both Will tread on others, nothing loath; Both have their ties, and both incline, When polished in the world to shine; And both peg out, and would you choose To be a man, or be his shoes."
